And these words that I command you today shall be on your heart. You shall teach them diligently to your children, and shall talk of them when you sit in your house, and when you walk by the way, and when you lie down, and when you rise. You shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be as frontlets between your eyes (Deuteronomy 6:6-8, esv).

When our lives are so full of the many distractions, how do we keep what is most important front and center in our hearts and minds? How do we remember the things God wants us to treasure? The answer can partly be found in Deuteronomy 6:8, "You shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be as frontlets between your eyes." God not only gave His people a full set of rules for living, but He also gave them instructions about how to remember His words. This passage contains the greatest commandment (Deuteronomy 6:5, see also Matthew 22:36-40) and offers some practical rules we can follow. This passage is God's law and how it should be the subject of continual meditation, conversation, and obedience. The home was to be a training center for faith in God and for the importance of His commands for healthy living, with parents modeling and teaching these truths to their children throughout the day. Unfortunately, over the centuries, the Israelites transformed Deuteronomy 6:8 from a vivid command into a hollow reenactment of God's truth. Instead of being as signs or as frontlets, snippets of God's laws had become trinkets worn for show. The symbols had replaced what they were intended to symbolize. Today's version of that empty practice might be someone who claims to love God's Word, brags about owning fifteen copies of the Bible, but never actually reads it. Or someone who does a daily devotional without letting those truths have an impact on his day. Or someone who goes to church but couldn't name any specific issue God is working on in their life. So what's the key to remembering what is most important? The verses above illustrate God's answer: the more we put them into practice in our daily lives, the less we have to worry about remembering them. If we settle for reading the Bible to our kids once a week, then we're going to need more reminders. But if our lifestyle revolves around God's Word, then each day will be filled with teachable moments. We can talk about His provision when we sit down to a meal. We can ask Him to guard our travels together and separately throughout the day. We can lead our children in talking to God about their day in prayer as they lie down, and we can be ready to thank the Lord for a new day when we arise.

Remembering what's most important starts with your own practice of regular exposure to God's Word and our intent to obey what you read. Those under your roof and others who are watching should know God is the central presence in your home. As you help them recognize the Lord and how much He cares about daily moments in their lives, you will remember just how much His guidance matters to you, too.

We want to take this time and welcoming you here to University and hope if you are visiting you would come back the next time you are able. If you are one of our visitors we would ask if you would remain after services so we might get the chance of meeting you and welcoming you here in person. If you have a question of us, would like to know more about your walk with Christ, want to set up a personal bible study, looking for a church home or are in need of any assistance please take the time and visit with us we would love to find out more how we can be of service to you.

Its time once again for our fellowship luncheon please make plans to stay after services and meet over at the SLC for a great time of food and fellowship. If you are visiting know that you are our invited guest and we would love to have you stay.

Summer brings warmer temperatures and family vacations and so it is for the Sharum's to pack up and head north for our annual family getaway. We appreciate this time very much and want to thank the elders and members for allowing us the time to get away for awhile (not that we don't like you, ha ha) but it's a good time to relax and recharge before coming back the next week. I want to thank Weldon, Charles and Bryan for filling in for me. You don't know how great it is to have such willingness to fill in during this time. THANK YOU!

Weldon will be filling in the next 2 Sundays and the pressure is on for him to out do last years sermon of "Hummingbirds and Buzzards" many of you may remember it that was his point. See you when we get back!
